I am new to game programming so i am not good at opening executables, deleting dlls and that sort of stuff in general. This is the point where i need help. A: Open the Windows Explorer (Windows+E) and navigate to the steamapps for Windows and Microsoft account folder (for example in your Steam folder c:\users\steam\desktop\steamapps\common\). Here you should find the game executable for Dirt 3 (dirt3.exe). Right-click the file and delete it if you don't want to play the game anymore. Close your Steam client and open it again (using Ctrl+Alt+Del shortcut) and look for the game you want to play next again. It should be there. Q: How to reuse and apply new HTML and CSS styles in all occurrences of an element I would like to make a hover effect work on all of the 'body' objects in this page. I guess an easy way to do that would be to put all the CSS styles in the same file, but that does not seem to work. When I change the css styles of a 'body' object, not only the style is changed for that element, but for all the other 'body' objects as well. What I mean is that if I make a style for say the 'div.title' element the 'div.title' for other 'body' objects, I still have the hover effect on the 'body' objects. Hovertitle Hello World
