Published by Square Enix.Q: How do I test an app using a QNAP? I've got a QNAP running DD-WRT, with a web interface. I want to use this to test my development apps, but I've had trouble getting it to work. So I installed VMWare and ubuntu. I then set the QNAP's IP address in VMWare to 192.168.1.4 and I had to set up a bridged network connection between the two so the QNAP could access the internet. I then set up a bridged network connection between the virtual machines, so they were both on the same network. I set the IP for the

Q: Android: Retrieving Location from SQLite to Geo Coordinates returns 0.0 My table has latitude and longitude columns, but when I try to query to retrieve the coordinates from the database the location returns 0.0. However, if I use the same query in phpmyadmin, it returns the values with no issue. Any ideas? Code below

try{ String selectQuery = "SELECT latitude, longitude FROM " + TABLE_NAME; //selectQuery = "SELECT * FROM " + TABLE_NAME; SQLiteDatabase db = this.getWritableDatabase(); Cursor c = db.rawQuery(selectQuery, null); //cursor = db.rawQuery(selectQuery,null); c.moveToFirst(); String lat = c.getString(c.getColumnIndex("latitude")); String lng = c.getString(c.getColumnIndex("longitude")); c.close(); Log.d("results", "result: " + lat); Log.d("results", "result: " + lng); return lat + " " + lng; } catch (Exception e){ Log.d("results", "Error : " + e.toString()); }

A: The query has a few problems: SELECT latitude, longitude FROM " + TABLE_NAME You're not checking for SQL syntax errors. You should definitely be using a

SQLiteOpenHelper and getOrCreateDatabase to ensure that the database gets created and accessed correctly. You're not closing database. Change your code to: String selectQuery = "SELECT latitude, longitude FROM " + TABLE_NAME; Cursor c = db.rawQuery(selectQuery, null); c.moveToFirst(); String lat = c.getString(c.getColumnIndex("latitude")); String lng = c.getString(c.getColumnIndex("longitude")); c.close(); Log.d("results", "result: " + lat); Log.d("results", "result: " + lng); return lat + " " +

Association between HIV diagnosis and patient and partner disclosure and disclosure concerns among men who have sex with men in Cape Town, South Africa. Because disclosure decisions, including to sexual partners, play a pivotal role in HIV-control, we evaluated the influence of factors associated with HIV-diagnosis on disclosure decision-making by identifying and comparing the rate and patterns of disclosure and disclosure concerns in HIV-diagnosed vs. HIV-uninfected men who have sex with men (MSM). Observed disclosure decision-making patterns in our sample of MSM HIV-diagnosed (n=88) and HIV-uninfected (n=47) men reflected the vulnerability HIV-diagnosis. Most (82% of men tested negative for one or more sexually transmitted infection in the three months prior to study enrollment) of the HIV-diagnosed men had not disclosed their HIV status and HIV-infection to anyone prior to study enrollment. Further, we found no significant relationships between HIV-diagnosis and an increased rate
