Lot of us are feeling the same, but I can't say about many here that if their titular is in then they can't take advantage of EP/FL. My two points: 1. I am not going to give up my work, its my life. There are life threatening situations we are expected to handle. I have no problem with the process & what I wrote is still available to me. No loss of work. 2. The job pays well. I still cant afford to jump ship. I am not mad but I am wondering what happens in the future if something happens. Patience. Vista 05-21 09:09 AM Hi Everyone, I had filed my physical residency card at one of the consulate in India. The consulate was very polite and welcoming. I was told they will hold it for a week and mail it back to me after i have traveled back to USA. From their official website, "The passport will be set to "Resided for more than 90 days" if: You are trying to obtain a visa. The consulate has not mailed it back to me yet. They can delay it by a week. I have also mailed them requesting the return of my card on 5th month that I filed at consulate. They send it back too. And they will charge a fee of Rs 1000 (INR). I am aware of it so I am not getting panicked. I would be just wondering if I need to worry about this fee or not. I know it will happen. It is the consulate of the country. -S MSFT1797 06-26 12:49 PM Hope you are right, but still, would have liked to hear from a C level HR person to confirm :) I am in the US in the IT industry. Just developed a bone biopsy in one of my arm. I would want to stay on a plane to my home country as long as I can to avoid the quacks. Or else get a leave of absense for the procedure. Any insights please. thanks. one reason why people get OAP is i
