A: A few suspicious items that are suspicious in this case are in that answer (the revision number): It has a user ID: youtube-red The timestamps for the last two revisions are from 2014 - the year the story took place 2014-07-06 12:25:54 2014-07-06 12:25:52 The last revision has no associated with it. Version 1.0: 2014-07-06 12:25:52 I'm not sure about the password-protected ZIP file. If you notice, the number 1 at the end is repeated five times. Update: I don't have a problem with the first two revisions, since they are probably done by others. However, the password-protected ZIP file should probably be opened with the archive manager you are currently using. If you are using WinRAR: it's just going to prevent you from opening it with WinRAR, due to the password protection. WinRAR will show you the contents of the ZIP file, which should be for any software, although they may not always be in a clear readable format. If you are using WinZip: there is a cryptic message like : Warning: The archive may not be encrypted, please contact the publisher. It will show the contents of the file. On WinZip about the file: Couldn't open Password-Protected Archive. The software can't open it with the password, and the archive is protected. On WinRAR about the file: Warning: There is no password to this archive. There is no password to this archive. Q: Makefile to compile PyObjC code I have PyObjC code of my iPhone app which compiles and runs without problem when using "make". However, when I'm trying to compile the code for archiving, it fails because of several compilation errors. Here is the code: CC = clang CFLAGS = -arch i386 PROGRAM = APPLE OBJECTS = $(PROGRAM).m OBJECTS += APPLE APPLE_CFLAGS = -Wno-unused-command-line-argument

APPLE_CXXFLAGS = $(APPLE_CFLAGS) -f

Also see the usage examples. Q: Cannot implicitly convert type 'System.DateTime' to 'vwPrintDetails.PrintJobVersion' This is the line of code which causes the error: PrintJobVersion = Convert.ToInt32(Web2. GetAttributeValue("ID").ToString()); and the attribute of the element: A: You need to convert the value of the ID attribute into an integer. To do that, you could use the Int32.Parse method. PrintJobVersion = Int32.Parse(Web2.GetAttributeValue("ID"))

; This will convert the string into an int. In your case, the resulting value will be 2 because the value is 00217201319190831E0021720131919042E. Show the world how you work Upcoming changes to FEPS will require suppliers to share more information with their customers than ever before. With the launch of FEPS 2 in 2012 and the introduction of the Code of Practice and Code of Conduct, the FSA has enabled market participants to place greater demands on companies to open up, so that customers, colleagues, competitors and the public can see how their business operates. This will only increase, as FEPS 2 is the first step in a comprehensive regulatory framework, with the European Union (EU) and the UK Government planning further changes to FSMA over the coming months. Helen Dickinson, head of customer experience at the FSA, says: "The new Code of Practice and Code of Conduct is changing the way we think about our responsibilities to customers, colleagues, competitors and the public. We need to be much more transparent, to be seen to do the right thing and to be trustworthy. "Openness is going to be increasingly important, as FEPS 2 is the first step towards a much more comprehensive regulatory framework. As a regulator, our best option is to expect market participants to operate transparently. This will enable us to hold them to account, and also create trust and good will. It is absolutely essential for us as a regulator to signal how we want to behave to the public, so the public can trust us to make choices that are right for them." Helen Dickinson says that the
